

Reclaiming Relational Pedagogy in Early Childhood: Learning from International experience

19th to 21st April 2007

"What you leave behind is not what is engraved in stone monuments but what is woven into the lives of others."

(Pericles to his troops)

"Human relationships...are the building blocks of healthy development."

(From Neurons to Neighborhoods)

"...through initial and on-going training and development, practitioners need to develop, demonstrate and continuously improve their relationships with both children and adults."

(KEEP document,DfES)

The aim of the conference is to open a dialogue about the meanings of relational pedagogy for the 21st century. We intend to consider the ways in which we work together with and for babies and young children. We will do this by returning to the roots of early childhood care and education and by discussing contemporary work. Respecting and revisiting tradition whilst looking for inspiration in innovation

Deadline for submission of abstracts 24 November 2006
